Q: Dear Sue, We are buying a home and need to know how to choose a good Home Inspector ? Thank you in advance for your advise.

A: This can be confusing, however please be advised that The Pennsylvania Home Inspection Law went into affect in 2001, which set up standards of practice.

You can view a list of home inspectors provided by:

1. Your local American Society of Home Inspectors (ASHI)
2. The National Association of Home Inspectors (NAHI)

These are their websites:
www.tristateashi.org (ASHI)
www.nahipa.org (NAHI)

By visiting these websites you will be able to see inspectors and their contact information as well as their vital information.

Q: Dear Sue, I paid a prepayment penalty when I refinanced my mortgage. Is this penalty tax deductible?

A: A mortgage lender will sometimes charge a penalty for the early payoff of a loan. Typically, the penalty is only for an early payoff that occurs in the initial few years. The penalty is considered an interest charge and yes, it is tax deductible in the same manner as the underlying mortgage interest.

Q. Dear Sue, My fiance and I will be purchasing a home prior to our wedding date. Does this affect the way in which we should take title to our home?

A. Marriage is not the determining factor as to how you take title to your new home. The desired portions of interest as well as the disposition upon death are the two determining factors.

Joint Tenancy: Joint ownership by two or more persons with the right of survivorship; all joint tenants own equal interest and have equal rights in the property.

Tenancy in Common: Ownership by two or more persons who hold undivided interest, without right of survivorship. Interest need not be equal.

Tenants by the Entirety: Married partners as one entity owning 100 % with the right of survivorship.
